FLOWER POWER

Dr. Jurgen Klein, founder and creator of Jurlique, continues to push the boundaries of skincare with his organic JK7 range. Made in Hawaii and containing organic herbs and citrus oils from the island, this is a deep cleansing and moisturising mask that not only gently removes old skin cells but encourages blood circulation. Soy proteins, oat and mushroom extracts also help to firm and smooth your skin.

BLOOMING LOVELY

Jo Malone takes inspiration from the English countryside for its new cologne, Honeysuckle & Davana. For a hint of sunshine long after the heatwave has disappeared, spritz on this floral scent for a sweet mix of fresh rose, woody moss and a fruity twist of davana. As with all Jo Malone fragrances, it can also be layered with others from the range. Grapefruit and Oud & Bergamot are the brand's recommendations.

BRIGHT EYES

With their newest Peptide4 range, skincare experts ELEMIS are combining science and nature to provide round-the-clock results. As well as a night recovery cream-oil that helps you look like you got your eight hours of sleep even when you didn't, there's also an eye cream that revives and brightens the undereye area when applied before sleeping and in the morning. As well as hawkweed and daisy extracts, it includes the seed oil from Night Scented Stock grown in East Anglia – ELEMIS is the first company to use this for cosmetic purposes.
